

To help improve communication between members, and to assist with the organisation of events, FOSPA collects, stores and uses personal information about their members, including home address details, telephone numbers and/or email addresses.

As FOSPA only holds personal data for the purposes of membership or for providing and administering activities for members, then we recognise that we are exempt from registering as a data controller. The fact that FOSPA holds personal data on Committee and/or members does however imply we have a duty to use this information responsibly.

Legitimate Reasons for Data Being Held

FOSPA will only hold information about members in these circumstances:

- The Committee holds a list of all volunteers that wish to be sent a copy of minutes of meetings, or those that are willing to be asked to volunteer at events, or kept up to date with plans.
- The Treasurer holds the completed Gift Aid and donation forms in order to manage the tracking of donations and claiming gift aid from HMRC.

Ensuring Responsible Use

FOSPA will ensure that the information it holds is subject to the following controls:

- Data will be deleted when no longer required, either because the member has left or has asked to be removed from the volunteer lists.
- HMRC rules for gift aid require that we hold onto donor details for six years following the end of the accounting year in which the last donation occurred and at this point FOSPA will destroy the forms holding personal financial data. <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/charities-detailed-guidance-notes/chapter-3-gift-aid#chapter-330-how-long-records-should-be-kept>
- Members will be aware that we hold this information because they have voluntarily supplied it when filling in FOSPA forms or sign-up sheets.
- Forms, which request personal information, will clearly state how data is to be held/used.
- No data held on members will be passed onto third parties outside the Committee and will only be shared within Committee on a need-to-know basis.
- Data on hardcopy or softcopy forms will be held securely as far as reasonably possible.
- Email circulations will ensure members are blind copied and all member emails should go through the Secretary for distribution.
